

Turvey

The Doodle was invented by Roger Price. It is a silly little drawing that has a title. GAMES magazine took this one step further and invented the Turvey – a silly little drawing that has two meanings – one right side up and the other upside down. Can you guess the double meanings of each of the following turvies?

The first explanation for each drawing is for the right-side-up view. The second is for the upside-down view.

1. Cookie crumbs on a piano
Abe Lincoln walking by a tall fence in a snowstorm
2. Radio Alaska
Spider towing a Cheerio
3. Two candles in a hurricane
Uncle Sam wearing elf shoes
4. Italian chef tossing pizza dough
Close-up of a Cabbage Patch Kid
5. Devil run over by a giant snowball
Oatmeal cookie graduating from high school
6. Shamu, the performing whale
Man in sandals finding a dime
7. Two popes at a garage sale
Olympic Dive: Perfect ten for toe points